DRAFT PLAN AIMS to future proof Kyogle LGA

Kyogle Council's $412 million Long Term Financial Plan is positive news in tough times for the people of Kyogle, says Mayor Danielle Mulholland.

"People across our Local Government Area have had a tough 12 months with fires, drought, flood and now Covid-19," Cr Mulholland said.

"The Long Term Financial Plan provides some good news for our area seeing Council continue to deliver an ambitious capital works program and quality services right across the LGA.

"There are some exciting projects that will futureproof our LGA.

"We have a $9 million plan for sewerage schemes in Tabulam, Mallanganee and Wiangaree and a $2.6 million plan for Tabulam's water supply.

"Over the next four years a $2 million initial sealing program will reduce the cost of maintaining sections of unsealed road and we have allocated recurrent annual funding of $500,000 from 2029/30.

"We have allocated an additional $4 million over 10 years for community infrastructure and parks and gardens to help deliver the Visions of Village Life plans, site-specific Master Plans, and Climate Change Initiatives.

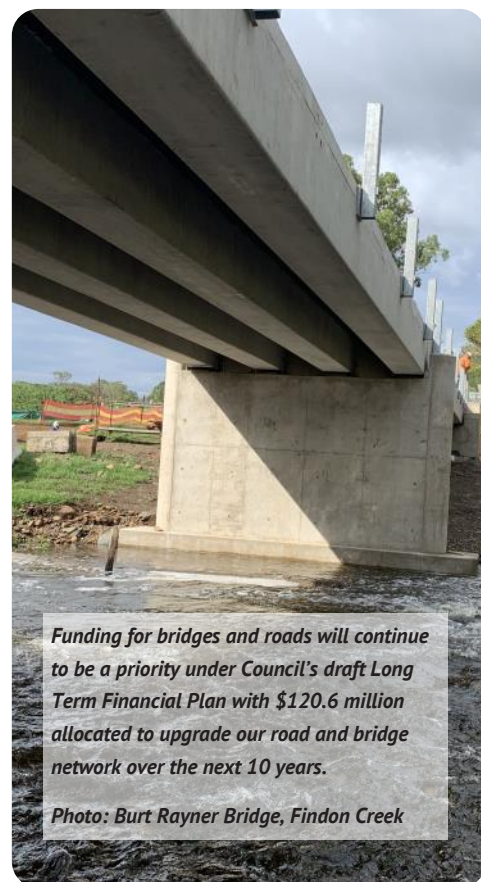

"Australians come together in tough times and we are grateful for the assistance of our State and Federal government partners. Rest assured we will continue to lobby for further funding so we can deliver beyond expectations for the future of our community."

General Manager Graham Kennett said Council continued to deliver for the community.

"This year we will finalise our Long Term Financial Plan to ensure we deliver first class services well into the 2030s," he said.

"This will secure the long term future of our infrastructure renewal and maintenance program, deliver against our renewable energy targets and continue to improve on our community and cultural services.

Other highlights include;
• $120.6 million for roads and bridges

Funding for bridges and roads will continue to be a priority under Council's draft Long Term Financial Plan with $120.6 million allocated to upgrade our road and bridge network over the next 10 years.

from the Mayor ...

Well it's been an interesting couple of months with the restrictions around Covid-19 (coronavirus).

When it comes with dealing with Covid-19, we are dealing with an unknown. We still don't fully understand community to community transmission. All we do know is that for us, so far the restrictions are working.

In the Kyogle LGA, we have an ageing population and therefore many of our residents and ratepayers are vulnerable. We have been sensible, and the vast majority have followed the restrictions which have kept us safe.

If the restrictions are lifted, and coronavirus gets into the Kyogle LGA, the community will not respond well. I think they'd rather be inconvenienced than extremely unwell, or possibly dead. We don't have a vaccine, we don't have any cure, and we don't want it in our council area, impacting on vulnerable people. There are conditions under which people can travel and that's just a matter of obtaining a permit but I do understand that some people have family scattered across the region, they want to check in with them and make sure they are safe.

We have successfully been using technology for various meetings, workshops and whatnot so this has been a bit of a learning curve for everyone. My concern is once these restrictions are relaxed or lifted, we are going to need something in place to look at community resilience. In the last year, we have had three major bushfires, drought, flood, and now coronavirus. I think there is a psychological impact from such events and all levels of government need to make sure that there are strategies and mechanisms in place to help people in this space.

On another note, Council has released its revised Long Term Financial Plan which is currently on public display, either at your local post office or online at Kyogle Council's website. Submissions from the public are due next month so have a look at where we going and what we are doing, and let us know what you think.

Under the bushfire and drought funding Council received, many projects have been funded and these approved projects can be found in the minutes from the April meeting.

You can conduct council business via phone, email or online although for urgent matters, the front desk is still open. At the time of writing this, the 1.5m restrictions are still in place so please be aware of your distance from others. Please stay safe, keep an eye on each other and together we can make it through this.

Until next time,

Danielle Mulholland

COUNCIL POLL postponed due to virus

Local government elections, which were to be held in September this year, have been postponed to address risks posed by the coronavirus pandemic.

The NSW Minister for Local Government Shelley Hancock said the elections would be deferred for one year.

Popularly elected mayors will continue to hold their office until the election is held.

However councils like Kyogle, where the mayor is elected by councillors, will need to hold a mayoral election if the mayor's two year term is due to expire before 2021. That means that Kyogle Council will hold an election for the Mayor and Deputy Mayor's positions at its September 2020 meeting.

The postponement of the next election will not change the future schedule of council elections, and the subsequent election will still proceed in September 2024.

SMALL BUSINESS grants available

Local businesses battling the impact of the coronavirus shutdown are strongly urged to register for a $10,000 NSW COVID-19 Small Business Support Grant.

The grants are to help small businesses stay afloat.

Applications will be available through Service NSW and will remain open until 1 June 2020.

The Small Business Support Grants are the centrepiece of a third wave of support measures announced by the NSW Government and area based on the successful scheme rolled out during the recent NSW bushfires.

In announcing the grants, NSW Premier Gladys Berejiklian said the grants were aimed at getting cash into small businesses struggling in the face of an unprecedented situation.

To be eligible for a $10,000 Small Business Support Grant, businesses will need to:

- have between 1-19 employees and a turnover of more than $75,000
- a payroll below the NSW Government 2019-20 payroll tax threshold of $900,000
- have an Australian Business Number as at 1 March 2020, be based in NSW and employ staff as at 1 March 2020
- be highly impacted by the Public Health (COVID-19 Restrictions on Gathering and Movement) Order 2020 issued on 30 March 2020
- use the funding for unavoidable business costs such as utilities, overheads, legal costs and financial advice
- provide appropriate documentation upon application.

For information on all Federal Government support available for business during the pandemic, go to <https://www.business.gov.au/>. Details of the support available through the State Government can be found at <https://www.nsw.gov.au/covid-19/businesses-and-employment>.

Bushfire grants approved by Council

Kyogle Council has awarded more than $770,000 to local organisations, individuals and businesses under two special bushfire recovery programs.

Council funded the special grants out of a $1.4 million allocation it received from the Commonwealth and NSW Governments after the 2019-2020 bushfires.

The Council grants, which range from $500 to $25,000, are aimed at stimulating the local economy and providing a boost for businesses in local villages hit hard by the bushfires.

Council at its April meeting (14 April) approved all 37 applications totaling $395,845 it received under its special Bushfire Round on Community Assistance Grants as well as all 32 applications totaling $375,329 it received under its one-off grant program targeting businesses in the villages.

"Council is hoping these grants will provide a boost to local residents, community organisations and businesses as the community recovers from the devastating effects of the bushfires," Kyogle Council Mayor Cr Danielle Mulholland said.

"Council opened up an extra round of Community Assistance grants and the applications approved were diverse, sorely needed and distributed across the entire Council area.

"As were the business grants which were available to businesses, or the owners of commercial premises, in our villages.

"With the cumulative impact of drought, fires, flood and now the COVID-19 pandemic, this injection into the local economy couldn't be more timely."

The Council will spend the remaining $628,000 of its $1.4 million bushfire recovery funding on helping rural landholders restore bushfire-affected infrastructure, improvements to local emergency evacuation centres, and on promotions and events to stimulate the visitor economy.

Council has also set aside funds to cover development application costs and ensure approvals are in place to allow bushfire-affected residents to rebuild homes and other structures damaged in the fires.

Council was notified of the first $1 million from the Australian Government in January this year, with the NSW Government adding $100,000 to this later that month. Council received a further $300,000 from the Australian Government in February.

"One of the main objectives of the funding that came from both state and federal governments was to not delay the distribution of these funds," Kyogle Council General Manager Graham Kennett said.

"With this in mind, Kyogle Council quickly put in place these programs to allow funding to flow into the local economy as soon as possible."

BUDGET IS AN "investment in the future"

Submissions should be made in writing by 4pm on 12 May 2020 to the General Manager, 1 Stratheden Street, Kyogle or to council@kyogle.nsw.gov.au.

BLAZE Aid PRAISED FOR a wonderful job

Work by BlazeAid to help landholders in the Woodenbong area after the Border Trail bushfire has been applauded by Kyogle Council.

Kyogle Councillor Lindsay Passfield told Council's April meeting that the help of the BlazeAid volunteers over the past three months had been significant and timely and was deeply appreciated by the Woodenbong community.

The BlazeAid camp was set up at the Woodenbong Showground on 27 December last year after the Border Trail bushfire burnt out tens of thousands of hectares in NSW and Queensland and affected scores of rural landholders.

The volunteers who manned the Woodenbong camp hit the ground running and in three months cleared 12.7km of damaged fencing and erected 30.03km of new fence on bushfire-affected properties.

The camp was disbanded on 27 March.

"BlazeAid did a wonderful job," Cr Passfield said.

"They worked really well with the local community and in the three months they were in Woodenbong they only had two days off – New Year's Day and Australia Day – apart from days lost to inclement weather.

"All up, there were 98 volunteers aged from 18 to 78, with many of the volunteers returning multiple times. We even had a few backpackers and a small contingent of army reservists from Lismore helping out early in the operation."

The cost of the Woodenbong camp, including more than 3,300 meals provided for the volunteers, was met by Kyogle Council out of its Bushfire Recovery funds.

Council will write to BlazeAid to formally thank the organisation and the Woodenbong camp coordinators for their contribution to the bushfire recovery.

KYOGLE LGA included in $10,000 grants

Small businesses impacted by the recent bushfires will receive more support with the expansion of the $10,000 grants to 13 additional Local Government Areas (LGAs).

Announced today by Federal Minister for Emergency Management, David Littleproud and NSW Deputy Premier and Minister responsible for Disaster Recovery John Barilaro, the much needed support will be extended to additional LGAs that have suffered hardship as a result of the recent bushfires.

Minister for Emergency Management, David Littleproud said the $10,000 bushfire grants have so far been made available to 17 LGAs and has now been expanded to 30 so that Government can support even more vital regional businesses.

"More than $125 million has been spent to support heavily impacted local businesses that were affected by the recent bushfires – and we need to keep that support going," Mr Littleproud said.

"Despite the extent of the Coronavirus crisis the federal government has never forgotten those impacted by this summer's bushfires. We're helping the states get money out quicker by supporting them with more boots on the ground to assist people to navigate the process.

"We are deploying 21 new specialist business recovery advisors into affected communities and are increasing the regional footprint of the National Bushfire Recovery Agency by up to 50 staff in order to make a real difference."

Mr Barilaro said the NSW Government continues to back regional small businesses and expanding this funding to additional LGAs is doing just that.

"Many regional businesses that rely on tourism lost their peak summer season due to the bushfires and then lost Easter trade due to COVID-19," Mr Barilaro said.

"It is fantastic to see more than 12,500 businesses have taken up the grant offer so far which equates to $125.4 million.

The grants are now being extended to 13 more LGAs, taking the total to 30. The 13 new LGAs are jointly funded by the Australian and NSW Governments.

The additional eligible LGAs include: Armidale, Bellingen, Cessnock, Coffs Harbour, Glen Innes Severn, Goulburn Mulwaree, Greater Hume, Kyogle, Mid-Western, Oberon, Singleton, Tenterfield and Walcha.

Grants of up to $50,000 are also available for eligible small businesses directly impacted by the bushfires. Businesses that have received financial assistance via other grants may still be eligible for the $10,000 grants.

For small business assistance please contact Service NSW, via <https://www.service.nsw.gov.au/transaction/apply-small-business-bushfire-support-grant>

Council adopts COVID-19 relief package

Kyogle Council has adopted a package of relief measures to support businesses and ratepayers affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The package includes rent relief for Council's commercial tenants, suspension of debt recovery measures until the end of the year, and waiving interest payable on outstanding rates and charges from 1 April until December 2020.

Council also agreed at its April meeting (14 April) to provide local businesses with free training in online digital marketing in a bid to boost online sales and retailing and to waive fees and charges associated with routine inspections of food premises.

Kyogle Council Mayor Cr Danielle Mulholland said the day-to-day lives of residents and local businesses had been severely impacted by emergency measures to contain the virus.

"The Kyogle Council area, like the rest of country, is feeling the impacts of these necessary restrictions – no area is immune," Cr Mulholland said.

"Council is all too aware of the challenges the community is facing now and will continue to face in the coming months.

"We hope the suite of measures we've adopted will go some way in supporting the local economy and protect jobs until life returns to normal."

In addition to the relief package, Council is providing local businesses and individuals with information on Federal and State Government COVID-19 relief programs and initiatives and will help, as required, with completing and submitting application forms. Staff will also look at developing further measures to support business as the pandemic continues and later as businesses move into the recovery phase.

COVID-19 response

Council is taking advice from the NSW and Federal Governments in relation to Covid-19 and is keeping the doors of its administration centre open during this challenging time so we can provide as comprehensive a service as possible to the community.

However, as most council business can now be done over the phone or online, we are asking people to pick up the phone and call our helpful customer service staff first unless you absolutely have to come into the administration centre.

You can call Council on 6632 1611.

Online services offered by the Council include:

- Payment of rates, water rates and debt- or accounts
- Lodge a customer request
- Download all of Council's forms and applications, including development applications lodge them by email (council@kyogle.nsw.gov.au) and pay any associated fees over the phone with a credit card.
- Report a lost animal
- Lodge a submission
- Provide feedback
- View all documents on public exhibition

- Read Council's meeting agenda and minutes and listen to a podcast of Council meetings

Most Council services are operating as normal, as resources allow. However, this may change at short notice and there have been some disruptions to a number of non-essential services.

HELP REDUCE wood smoke pollution

With winter fast approaching, Council is asking residents to do what they can to reduce wood smoke pollution.

One of the major contributors to wood smoke pollution in the colder months is the incorrect use of wood fire heaters.

On colder days, wood smoke particles from inefficient heaters float in the air and can be seen as a smoke haze that sometimes sits over built up areas.

Not only is this sort of pollution unattractive, it can also be bad for people's health.

Wood smoke can cause breathing difficulties, especially for people suffering existing respiratory conditions such as asthma, and for very young children and frail older people. There is also evidence that smoke pollution can cause cardiac problems.

You can help reduce wood smoke pollution this winter by using aged, dry wood and running heaters properly.

The NSW Environment Protection Authority has provided the following 10 tips for reducing wood smoke pollution:

- Don't let wood-fired heaters smoulder overnight – keep enough air in the fire to maintain a flame
- Burn only dry, aged hardwood – unseasoned wood has lots of moisture, which causes a fire to smoke
- Store wood undercover in a dry, ventilated area – freshly cut wood needs to be stored for at least eight to 12 months
- Never burn rubbish, driftwood or painted or treated wood – they are sure to pollute the air and can produce poisonous gases
- When lighting a cold heater, use plenty of dry kindling to establish a good fire quickly
- Use several small logs rather than one large log and stack them loosely in the wood heater, so air can circulate around them – don't cram the firebox full
- Keep the flame lively and bright – the fire should only smoke when first lit and when extra wood is added. Open the air controls fully for 5 minutes before and 15 to 20 minutes after reloading the heater.
- Check the chimney regularly to see how well the fire is burning – if there is smoke coming from the chimney, increase the air supply to the fire
- Have the chimney cleaned every year to prevent creosote build-up
- When buying a wood heater, make sure it has a compliance plate showing it meets the Australian Standard (AS/ NZS 4013:1999).

By following these easy steps, you can minimise the harmful effects of smoke pollution on your neighbours and the environment.

Weather kind FOR ROADS & BRIDGES

Asphalting works were carried out on Curtois Street, Kyogle between Donald Street and Gardner Lane at the end of April. Council will be returning to carry out improvements and rectification work on the lower section of the Curtois Street in May. Kerb and guttering in Wyndham Street, Kyogle was extended in April.

Replacement of a timber bridge with a new steel and concrete bridge is currently underway on Walters Road. A second small bridge on Babyl Creek Road will be replaced with pipes in May.

The weather has been kind and the crew working on the Summerland Way at Burnetts is making great progress. Work will continue through May.

Work is also progressing well on the upgrade and sealing of Clarence Way south of Bruxner Highway. A further six kilometres of road has been sealed, bringing the sealed section almost to the halfway point. Works to date have included road realignment, intersection improvement, drainage improvements and road building.

Council carried out heavy patching in Woodenbong on Mount Lindesay Road and Macpherson Street in mid-April. The long-awaited road repairs in Yabbra Scrub on Clarence Way will commence in May and once complete, the crew will move on to rehabilitation of Capeen Street in Bonalbo followed by improvements to road surface at the bus pull-over at Mallanganee.

HOME IS where the heart is

The Arts and all of those connected to the industry are all banding together to keep the creative cultures alive and active in these times of a worldwide pandemic. We have not seen anything like this before lock us out of our day to day engagements and turn our thinking caps into a spin as what we are experiencing now. However this is okay as it gives us all time to reflect.

The chain reaction from how Covid-19 has affected jobs within the Arts sector is like a domino effect with the end product being the first thing to fall over and set a collapsing spiral of the rest of the dominos in line.

From the artist to the many other people who support their product, jobs have been lost and futures are uncertain. Bearing this in mind though we must all look at how we are engaging and supporting and being supported by those within the creative industries as we physically distance ourselves and move towards utilizing technology for both work, education and leisure activities. Pretty creative stuff is happening at a very fast speed.

As the galleries of our world are all in lock down many are turning to technology to provide people with virtual tours of their collections, resources and learning activities and a host of other ways to stay engaged in The Arts. It is all out there and some might find it is all too much.

Whatever your take on this is we all need to acknowledge the wealth of different skills, occupations, technologies, materials, support and assistance that backs up an end product whether it be a painting, a sculpture, a film, a play, a piece of music, an object of adornment, etc., so many links make this end result what it is for the viewer to engage with and so many people are employed in making them happen.

As to date the Roxy Gallery is unsure of when it will be able to open back up to the public as an exhibition space which does leave a number of local and regional artists up in the air as to when or if they will be able to get an exhibition happening in this gallery space.

The Director of the Roxy Gallery is re-scheduling to an unknown schedule time at present which is extremely unsettling but at the same time extremely important in order to look after the wellbeing of us all.

The gallery is looking at a virtual engagement as the next exhibition which is just as much work as installing a real exhibition but probably less back breaking.

To have things online needs good photographing of works, clear information on artist and works and then a platform to upload all of this onto. From here the next step is to find the audience, how to direct traffic to the site and then how to collect statistics on who has engaged in the exhibition and the feedback on the work. To start with the Roxy Gallery is providing information and resources through their facebook page.

Be assured the Roxy Gallery will rise again and embrace new thinking and ways of supporting artists in our region until such time the gallery will be pursuing ways to support the many creative talents living in this area.

As the Arts are hit hard with funding cuts and capacity to gain support from government sectors please spare a thought for just how important creativity is to us all. Take note of just how much you are engaging with the Arts as you practice Covid 19 protocol.

Kyogle library NEWS

COVID-19 Update

Due to health concerns, the Kyogle library is now closed to the public. Staff continue to work behind closed doors and are available to answer your phone calls and email enquiries.

New reserve and collection service

Library members are now able to reserve items through our new library app for iPhone or Android, online through the Member Services page of our Catalogue, by sending an email to enquiries@richmondvalley.nsw.gov.au or by phoning the library on 6632 1134.

Members will be contacted via their preferred method when the reserves are ready to collect from their local branch. Collection times are Tuesday to Friday, 10am to 5pm.

When you arrive at the library to collect your reserves, we would appreciate it if you could call us. This will help us maintain social distancing.

We have increased the loan limit to 30 items at one time and the borrowing period is now 42 days (6 weeks).

We are currently investigating a similar reserve service for the Mobile Library and hope to have it operational soon.

Click & Collect printing service

Clients can email documents to be printed at Kyogle library using the address kyoissues@richmondvalley.nsw.gov.au. Please add your name to the subject bar for identification along with a brief message requesting number of copies, b&w or colour and A4 or A3 size as well their day/time for collection.

Avoid unnecessary trips to Council's WASTE FACILITIES

To keep residents and staff safe during the COVID-19 pandemic, Council is asking people to stay home and avoid all unnecessary trips to Council's waste facilities.

Council realizes that that people are viewing the extra time at home as the perfect opportunity to have a clean out.

However, trips to waste facilities to dispose of unwanted household items is considered non-essential travel at this time.

Please hold on to all those bits and pieces you are wanting to dispose of for now by storing them in a corner of your carport, garage or spare room.

This will keep the community safe and prevent unnecessary waste from going to landfill.

Of course, if you are a resident of the Kyogle local government area and do not have access to a kerbside waste collection service, you can still visit the tip and transfer stations to dispose of your domestic waste.

Thanks everyone, together we will get through this.
